

The Central European Journal of Communication (ISSN 1899-5101) - the official Journal of the Polish Communication Association is published twice a year by the University of Wrocław Press.

The refereed journal provides an international forum for empirical, critical and interpretative, quantitative and qualitative research examining the role of communication in Central Europe and today's world. The journal welcomes high quality research and analysis from diverse theoretical and methodological approaches, as well as reviews of publications and publishes notes on a wide range of literature on media and communication studies. Submission of original articles is open to all researchers interested in different fields of media and communication studies.

The 'Central European Journal of Communication' was created after the General Meeting of Founders of the Polish Communication Association (PCA). The promotion of the first issue took place in the historical Oratorium Marianum (University of Wrocław) during the first Congress of the Association (September 15-17, 2008). The journal has been further advertised during the 59th and the 60th congress of the International Communication Association and several media and communication conferences organized in Central and Eastern Europe. Guest Editors and Reviewers of the 'Central European Journal of Communication' on the Development of Agenda-Setting Theory and Research were among the participants at the II. Congress of the Polish Communication Association organized 15-17 September 2010 in Lublin. The Fall 2010 issue was also advertised during the 3rd ECREA European Communication Conference in Hamburg (12-15 October 2010) and the 3rd Slovak, Czech, Polish, Hungarian, Austrian Communication Forum in Bratislava (2-4 December 2010).
