

From the Editor

Dear authors, readers and future authors,

It is my pleasure to present you the 1st number of the 36th volume of the Journal of Information and Organizational Sciences – JIOS.

In this issue a selection of 5 original scientific papers and 1 survey paper has been included, all of which have undergone a rigorous double-blind review process in some cases in several rounds.

As in prior issues of the Journal, this one also comprises papers that cover themes from various ICT fields: computer programming, mobile technologies, symbolic logic in the field of information sciences, business processes, formal concept analysis, data analysis, management and other related themes. We hope that the variety of themes will draw the attention of researchers in different ICT fields and motivate potential authors to expand the Journal's thematic scope by other themes that may be of interest to the wider ICT research community.

I would like to use this opportunity to encourage prospective authors among you, dear readers, to submit papers at <http://jios.foi.hr>. You are also invited to share with us your comments or critical remarks regarding the papers previously published in the Journal. Further, we would appreciate your willingness to become a reviewer for submitted papers and thus contribute significantly to the rising quality of JIOS.

So far JIOS has been indexed in nine well known databases. We are continuously investing a lot of effort to extend the list of databases where JIOS would be cited, in order to make the published papers available to a larger readers' audience, and give your research a greater impact factor.
