Editorial

After lots of thinking trough, negotiation, teaming up top associates and struggling to find the right path in numerous possibilities and impossibilities, right and wrong decisions we bring you a brand new scientific journal! For us, who took part in a big venture of creating and developing the Study of Social Work at the University of Mostar, volunteered, motivated only by the love for science and carried on the wings of our wish that the complex area of social work, its theory and praxis, especially in this hard times, gets an encouragement and continues to develop in Bosnia and Herzegovina and who, without any expectations, invested our knowledge, time, effort and everything else necessary for such a ambitious project to be realized, the fact that this is the very first journal which deals whit the theme of theory and praxis of social work and other similar disciplines in Bosnia and Herzegovina is very important. But even more important is that we do a quality work and you, who will read and use the new cognitions and deliberations given in the articles, will be the judges of our success.

Of course the first issue cannot offer the finite answer to such a complex question! Time, following issues and articles published in them will show its value. We believe that our wish, determination and effort together with the work of our associates - quality scientists will bring success.

We owe that to the science of social work, to its praxis, which is every day faced with a more complex social state without the much needed support, to the possibility for a lifelong education and professional advancement but also to the association "Pro Scientia" which gathers highly motivated young scientists and which also provides a "home" for our journal.

Now that it is in front of you we invite you to cooperation convinced that with its positive orientation and pure love for science and praxis of this broad interdisciplinary area will attract the same kind of science loving researchers, theorists and teachers of a new generation of experts and scientists, pioneers in the fields of social work, psychology, pedagogy but also law, medicine and other sciences dealing with same questions. These pages will be open for all quality articles not only for scientists and theorists from Bosnia and Herzegovina in all three official languages but also from the region and from all around the world. We also welcome your ideas and proposals which will help the development of the journal and raise its quality and insure the survival and wellbeing of this "infant".
