It is with deep sorrow that we must announce that our dear colleague, Mr. Zoltan Bokor (44) died tragically and suddenly at Sopron, Hungary, due to constant, excruciating pain associated with the incurable disease. He has left behind his wife, many close friends, and colleagues.

His professional career started when he graduated as Transport Engineer in 1995 at the Budapest University of Technology and Economics (BME), and then in 1996 as Economist at the Budapest University of Economic Sciences and Public Administration (BKE). He earned his Ph.D. degree in Transportation Sciences in 2000. His research interests focused on railway management. He habilitated in 2015 at the Szent István University (SZIU). He had over 200 publications, he was a member of several editorial and advisory boards and under his supervision four students gained a Ph.D. degree. Besides his excellent professional results, he always had time and consideration for his family, colleagues, and friends.

Zoltan Bokor was a member of the Scientific Board of the Journal Promet – Traffic & Transportation since 2015 and his participation in the work brought considerable contribution to the popularisation of science and our Journal, for which we feel extremely thankful.
