Slavic (schiavoni) households in some towns in Northern Terra di Bari in 1553

Relationships between the two coasts of the Adriatic Sea date to the prehistoric period, but they intensified during the Middle Ages, first with the Byzantine Empire and later due to the Ottoman threat: the Battle of Kosovo Polje in 1389 and the conquest of Constantinople in 1453 forced some people of the Balkans (Slavs, Greeks, Albanians) to leave their countries and emigrate to the Kingdom of Naples. There are many reports about the schiavoni, as Slavic people were called, in some centres north of Bari such as Molfetta, Giovinazzo (both maritime towns), Terlizzi, Bitonto and Ruvo di Puglia (towns in the interior on the ancient via Traiana). Molfetta concluded a trading agreement with Ragusa (Dubrovnik) in 1148 and from 1250 there was a neighbourhood called Sevenicus (vicinia que dicitur Sevenicus) occupied by people from Šibenik who founded the church of St. Peter; in 1417 it was still recorded as vicinia Scibinici. In Giovinazzo a Slavic community was surely established at the beginning of the 15th century when in 1419 Ghionnus Sclavonus rented a house. A land known as lama sclavorum or lama de sclavis was mentioned in several charters of Terlizzi dating from 1153 to 1362, maybe a plot of land owned by Slavic people living in this centre. In Bitonto a numerous community was recorded in the second half of the 14th century, while in Ruvo di Puglia the Slavic community lived near a city gate called in medieval documents (since 1368) Porta Slavorum (gate of the Slavs); probably they had a neighbourhood that gave that name to the gate. Traces of schiavoni also emerge from other sources such as the Matricula maioris ecclesie rubensis, an obituary of the Cathedral of Ruvo dated in the 13th-14th centuries; among the benefactors and donors there is a woman called Radosta sclava; she was a servant girl (ancilla) of a judge, and her name refers to the Serbo-Croatian term radost. The same source also mentions personal names of Slavic origin such as Bullarina (corrupted form of Boliarina) or Boia (corrupted form of Bolia).

Some fiscal documents (registri dei fuochi, hearth tax registers) contain the list of Slavic households living 1553 in the aforementioned towns. The transcription of this list is presented below and it will be the basis for further study. There are about 120 people, in 37 hearths; the widest community is the one in Bitonto (19 families and 75 people), while the smallest was in Ruvo di Puglia (2 families and 6 people). For each hearth the list registers the head of the family, his wife, sons and daughters, and sometimes the mother of the head of the family was living with them, as well as their age; most of the heads of the family are young (30-40 years), but there are also some elderly ones over 50 years. For some of them the region of origin on the other side of the Adriatic was recorded: Splalatro (Split), Cataro (Kotor), Montenegro, Scibenico (Šibenik) and Ragusa (Dubrovnik). It seems that some of them relocated from other towns of Terra di Bari as Gioia del Colle or Bisceglie. Almost all the Slavs did not own anything of fiscal importance, and this fact was recorded by the phrase nihil possidet. Nothing is reported about their profession, only one head of the family was recorded as a shepherd. However, from other sources we know that schiavoni were often artisans and bakers, and some were still servants living in the households of their employers. They were owners of real estate, such as two men from Ruvo, Theodorus schlavone whose house is mentioned in 1542 or Marcus Sclavus, a servant (mancipium) who achieved the emphyteutic lease of a land plot to cultivate in 1470.

Slavenska (schiavoni) kućanstva u nekim gradovima u sjevernom dijelu Barijske oblasti (Terra di Bari) godine 1553.

Postojanje slavenskih (schiavoni) zajednica u Apuliji datira iz vremena prije 1000. godine, no u kasnom se srednjem vijeku njihova prisutnost povećala uslijed osmanskog napredovanja na Balkanu. Ipak, porezne isprave (registri dei fuochi – registri ognjišta iz Državnoga arhiva u Napulju) bilježe neka slavenska kućanstva. U ovom prilogu donosi se transkripcija popisa slavenskih (schiavoni) obitelji u pet gradova u Barijskoj oblasti: Molfetta, Giovinazzo, Terlizzi, Bitonto i Ruvo di Puglia. Ondje sadržani podaci vrlo su zanimljivi i pružaju osnovu za daljnje studije.

Keywords: Slavic communities, schiavoni, Terra di Bari, emigration, hearth tax registers.
Ključne riječi: slavenske zajednice, schiavoni, Barijska oblast, iseljavanje, registri ognjišta.
