

Introduction

Inter-University Centre Dubrovnik (IUC), St Hilda's College Oxford and the Herbert Simon Society in Milan run the annual Kathy Wilkes Memorial Conference collaboratively. The three institutions will be taking it in turns to host the event, starting with Dubrovnik in 2022. In 2023 it will be held in Oxford and in 2024 it will be held in Milan and Turin.

The papers published in this issue of the Croatian Journal of Philosophy were presented at the first event that took place in Dubrovnik in April 2022. The guest editor of this issue feels that there is no need for any introductory remarks about Kathy Wilkes since the first two papers by Nada Bruer and Paul Fletcher give factual information together with fond personal memories of Kathy Wilkes as a philosopher, defender of academic freedom, friend to many and much much more. The rest of the papers deal either with her work or discuss issues directly or indirectly inspired by her many ideas.
