

EDITORIAL

Dear readers,

On July 1, 2023, it will be exactly ten years since Croatia became a full member of the European Union. At that time, the idea of INTEREULAWEST Journal was coined.

Today we are pleased to present to you the tenth volume of the Journal, with which we symbolically circle the integration of Croatia into the European family, bearing in mind this year's entry into the Eurozone and the Schengen area.

The summer issue of current volume contains eleven scientific and two professional papers that outline two current topics of today.

Firstly, the war in Ukraine not only destabilized the region, but also greatly affected global economic and humanitarian picture, the consequences of which are felt throughout the world. Two papers in this edition of the Journal discuss certain aspects of that issue.

Secondly, the digital transformation of society is moving forward at an unprecedented acceleration. The speed with which new digital technologies are developed and penetrate all the aspects of society and the economy raises many questions, mostly from an ethical and legal point of view. It is becoming apparent that the legal framework is struggling with difficulties to keep the pace with new technologies and the new social relations they generate. Five papers in this issue outline the regulation of digital transformation in different areas of law.

Bearing in mind mentioned above, we believe that you will enjoy the papers that we have prepared for you this summer.
