ABSTRACT

In the fifth report of the Croatian Birds Rarities Committee, newly accepted records of rare bird taxa submitted to the committee between 2017 and 2024 are reported. Twelve species, including two treated as possible or certain escapees from captivity, plus one subspecies and one hybrid, have been observed in Croatia for the first time. Six species have been recorded for the first time since 1950, leading to their reclassification from category B to category A. The list of birds of Croatia now includes 405 species in categories A, B, and C plus six subspecies. Additionally, five species are listed in category C E, two in category D, and eleven in category E (escapees), which are not included in the official list of birds of Croatia. Eight species have been removed from the rare birds list due to the increasing number of observations. The list of rare bird taxa now includes 80 species, with five in category C E, one in category C, two in category D, and five subspecies. Four new breeding species in Croatia have been accepted during this period, along with one additional species that bred for the first time after being declared extinct.

Keywords: rare bird taxa, Croatia, bird list, escapee, subspecies, hybrid, breeding

INTRODUCTION AND METHODS

The fifth report of the Croatian Birds Rarities Committee covers observations of rare bird taxa (species, subspecies, and hybrids) reported to the Committee from 2017 to 2024, as well as breeding records of rare and irregular breeding species in Croatia over the past decade. In addition to validating reported observations of bird taxa listed as Rare in Croatia or bird taxa observed for the first time in Croatia, the Croatian Birds Rarities Committee is also responsible for updating the official Croatian national bird species list. The members of the Croatian Birds Rarities Committee are Sanja Barišić (Chair), Jelena Kralj, Krešimir Leskovar, Vladimir Bartovsky, Ivan Budinski, Luka Jurinović, and Adrian Tomik.

The bird taxonomy and systematics have been updated following HBW & BIRDLIFE INTERNATIONAL (2024). Croatian names follow RADOVIĆ et al. (2005) and the Dictionary of Standard Croatian Bird Names (ZAVOD ZA ORNITOLOGIJU 2018). Bird taxa listed as Rare in Croatia are given systematically. The description of categories follows the guidelines from the AERC (Association of European Rarities Committees, www.aerc.eu/guidelines.html). However, category C E is not listed in AERC guidelines; it describes a taxon that cannot be assigned to either category C or category E with reasonable certainty.

Numbers after the species names refer to the number of records and the number of individuals reported in the last 50 years. If the individual count is approximate, the minimum number of individuals followed by the sign “+” is given. The sign “*” next to the count indicates that the only records of a bird taxon are more than 50 years old. In addition, for the observations covered by this report (reported between January 2017 and February 2024), detailed information is provided: date (DD/MM/YYYY), locality, number of birds, age or sex if known, and the observer(s). If more than one observer is included in the observation, only the names of observers involved in the identification of the species are listed. Within each species, separate records are listed by date. Rejected records and records of rare or irregular breeding species are listed separately. The complete list of the birds of Croatia is given in Appendix 1.

DESCRIPTION OF CATEGORIES

AERC:

- A Species that have been recorded in an apparently natural state at least once since 1st January 1950.
- B Species that have been recorded in an apparently natural state but only between 1st January 1800 and 31st December 1949.
- C Species that were originally introduced by man, but have established self-sustained breeding populations derived from introduced stock, also birds probably originating from a category C population in other country.
- D Species that would otherwise appear in categories A or B except that there is reasonable doubt that they have ever occurred in a natural state.
- E Species that have been recorded as escapees from captivity.

C E Species that would otherwise appear in category C except that escapees from captivity could not be ruled out with reasonable certainty.

Regularity:

R Regular – species recorded in at least 7 years out of the last 10 years.

Ir Irregular – species recorded more than 10 times and in more than 5 years in the last 50 years but in fewer than 7 years out of the last 10 years.

Rare Species recorded 1–10 times or in 1–5 years in the last 50 years.

RESULTS AND DISCUSSION

From December 2017 to February 2024, the Croatian Birds Rarities Committee examined 220 records, 215 of which were accepted. Of the accepted records, 181 are in category A, 1 in category C, 1 in category D, 15 in category C E, 15 in category E, with 1 subspecies and 1 hybrid. Compared to the previous two reports that covered the years 2005–2012 (KRALJ & BARIŠIĆ 2013) and 2013–2016 (BARIŠIĆ et al. 2016), the average number of rare species observations recorded per year has increased from 17.5 and 22.5 to 34.4, respectively, indicating a steady, moderate increase in bird-watching activity in Croatia over the last two decades. Additionally, 43 records of rare or irregular breeding species and 2 records of species breeding outside their known range are reported.

Twelve species have been observed in Croatia for the first time: Northern Fulmar Fulmarus glacialis, African Sacred Ibis Threskiornis aethiopicus, Red-wattled Lapwing Vanellus indicus, Sabine's Gull Xema sabini, Arctic Tern Sterna paradisaea, Alexandrine Parakeet Palaeornis eupatria, Booted Warbler Iduna caligata, Dusky Warbler Phylloscopus fuscatus, Siberian Chiffchaff Phylloscopus tristis, Orange-flanked Bush-robin Tarsiger cyanurus, Siberian Accentor Prunella montanella, and Cretzschmar's Bunting Emberiza caesia. The wild origin of the Red-wattled Lapwing is questionable, so it has been placed in category D. The African Sacred Ibis is a non-native species in Europe, with a well-established, self-sustained breeding population in Italy (KELLER et al. 2020); thus, it has been placed in category C. However, the origin of birds observed in Croatia is not always clear, with one confirmed escapee (a ringed individual). The Alexandrine Parakeet is treated as an escapee.

Six species have been recorded for the first time since 1950, leading to their reclassification from category B to category A and their designation as Rare: Black Grouse Lyrurus tetrix, Spur-winged Lapwing Vanellus spinosus, Black Guillemot Cepphus grille, Razorbill Alca torda, Cinereous Vulture Aegypius monachus, and Semi-collared Flycatcher Ficedula semitorquata. The observation of one new subspecies has been accepted – the 'British' Lesser Black-backed Gull Larus fuscus graellsii, a ringed bird belonging to the UK breeding population. Additionally, a hybrid between the Carrion Crow and Hooded Crow Corvus corone x cornix was recorded.

Based on the records of GPS-tagged birds (<https://4vultures.org>), two species have been included to the list of rare birds: the Egyptian Vulture Neophron percnopterus and the Cinereous Vulture. An Italian captive-bred Egyptian Vulture named Diego crossed the Adriatic Sea on the morning of 26 April 2021. He stayed for one day around the canyon of the Krka River, a former nesting site for the species, before continuing his journey, visiting other countries, and eventually returning to Dalmatia. A Bulgarian captive-bred Cinereous Vulture named Riga visited Croatia in 2019 and 2020, lingering in Kvarner and the Dalmatian hinterland, but also reaching Kalnik Mountain. A Cinereous Vulture named Kutelka, originally from Spain but released in Bulgaria, visited Croatia in 2021, spending most of its time on the island of Cres. Cinereous Vultures have been seen in Croatia after a gap of about 70 years.

As in the previous period, further sightings of colour-ringed Northern Bald Ibises Geronticus eremita have been documented in the western and coastal parts of Croatia. These birds all come from the Austrian/German reintroduced population, which is free-living but not self-sustaining (<https://www.waldrappteam.at>). Consequently, the Northern Bald Ibis remains in category E in Croatia.

Eight species have been downlisted from Rare to Irregular due to the increased frequency of their observations: Red-breasted Goose Branta ruficollis, Common Eider Somateria mollissima, Common Scoter Melanitta nigra, Eurasian Dotterel Eudromias morinellus, Slender-billed Gull Larus genei, Great Black-backed Gull Larus marinus, Citrine Wagtail Motacilla citreola, and Common Rosefinch Carpodacus erythrinus. Nonetheless, reporting observations of these species is still encouraged, but detailed descriptions of the birds observed are no longer necessary. Similarly, due to regular observations during migration, the Red-throated Pipit Anthus cervinus was downlisted from Irregular to Regular. Indian Peafowl Pavo cristatus has been regularly breeding in several localities in Croatia. For example, it has been breeding on the island of Lokrum for more than 10 years (Ivan Budinski, pers. comm.) and is thus treated as a regular introduced breeding species. The status of some bird taxa that would otherwise be downlisted from Rare based on the number of records was not changed if their expected movement patterns are inconsistent with their occurrence in Croatia. For example, the Paddyfield Warbler Acrocephalus agricola and the Yellow-browed Warbler Phylloscopus inornatus, which winter in Asia, are not expected to reach Croatia by overshooting or by slightly to moderately deviating from their usual migration route.

An observation that had been reported and accepted as a Booted Warbler Hippolais caligata at the 10th Committee meeting was reviewed again at the 22nd meeting and identified as a Dusky Warbler Phylloscopus fuscatus. Thus, the 2018 record of the Booted Warbler represents the first confirmed observation in Croatia. The database was corrected accordingly.

Additionally, 59 records of 12 rare or irregular breeding species, as well as new breeding species in Croatia, have been accepted, along with two records of regular breeding species that have, for the first time, bred outside their known breeding areas in Croatia. The first breeding records of the Mew Gull Larus canus (JURINOVIĆ & MARTINOVIĆ 2020), Mediterranean Gull Larus melanocephalus (TOMIČIĆ et al. 2023), Red-footed Falcon Falco vespertinus (KLANFAR 2018) and Rosy Starling Pastor roseus (ŠERE et al. 2022) have been recorded. The breeding of the Rosy Starling has been mentioned in older literature (KRALJ 1997) but without any specific details. Therefore, this is the first documented case of its nesting in Croatia. A new nesting attempt by the Red Kite Milvus milvus was confirmed after it had been extinct as a breeding species in Croatia for about 50 years (TOMIK et al. 2019). Based on the regularity of breeding records over the last 10 years, the Cattle Egret Bubulcus ibis is now considered a regular breeding species (MIKUSKA et al. 2023). A comprehensive list of rare and irregular breeding species is provided below the list of rare species and includes records over the past decade (2015-2024).

Wintering and migrating population statuses were updated for seven species: Spotted Crake Porzana porzana, Cattle Egret Bubulcus ibis, Pied Avocet Recurvirostra avosetta, Black-legged Kittiwake Rissa tridactyla, Pallid Harrier Circus macrourus, Long-legged Buzzard Buteo rufinus, and Bluethroat Luscinia svecica.

The list of rare bird taxa now includes 80 species, with 5 included in category C E, 1 in category C, and 2 in category D. Additional, 5 rare subspecies are included. Twelve species are classified as escapees (category E). There is also one hybrid. Notably, the African Sacred Ibis has observations in the C, C E and E categories, while the Egyptian Goose Alopochen aegyptiaca is present in both C E and E categories, and the Carrion Crow in both A and E categories.

The list of bird species of Croatia now contains 405 species in categories A, B and C. Species in categories C E (5 species), D (2 species), and E (12 species) are not included in the official list of the birds of Croatia (Appendix 1). This report highlights an increase in the number of rare bird taxa observed in Croatia in recent years. This could be attributed to increased birdwatching activity, changes in migration patterns possibly driven by climate change, and improved tracking capabilities through advanced technologies like GPS tagging. The addition of twelve new species, along with first-time breeding records for four species, represents significant contribution to the Croatian bird list, expanding our understanding of the country's avifauna. The Croatian Birds Rarities Committee plays a critical role in monitoring avian biodiversity in Croatia through the validation of observations and updating of the national bird list. Ongoing citizen science efforts, along with targeted research, are crucial for understanding trends within bird populations, especially in the face of global environmental changes.

CHANGES IN TAXONOMY AND SYSTEMATICS COMPARED TO THE PREVIOUS REPORT

Several species have undergone changes in their genus names: Hazel Grouse Tetrastes bonasia, European Shag Gulosus aristotelis, Rose-ringed Parakeet Alexandrinus krameria, Booted Warbler Iduna caligata, Olivaceous Warbler Iduna pallida, Barred Warbler Curruca nisoria, Lesser Whitethroat Curruca curruca, Sardinian Warbler Curruca melanocephala, Subalpine Warbler Curruca cantillans, Rüppell's Warbler Curruca ruppeli, Common Whitethroat Curruca communis, Dartford Warbler Curruca undata, Rufous-tailed Scrub-robin Cercotrichas galactotes, European Greenfinch Chloris chloris, Twite Linaria flavirostris, Common Linnet Linaria cannabina, and Eurasian Siskin Spinus spinus.

The Orphean Warbler has been split into two species, with the Eastern Orphean Warbler Curruca crassirostris, now recognized as a regular breeding species in Croatia, and the Western Orphean Warbler Curruca hortensis, which has been added to the list of rare species.

The Carrion Crow and the Hooded Crow have been lumped together again, with the Hooded Crow now treated as a subspecies Corvus corone cornix on the list of birds of Croatia. Similarly, the Common Redpoll Acanthis flammea and the Lesser Redpoll A. cabaret are now considered a single species: the Redpoll Acanthis flammea.

Appendix 1.

The list of Bird taxa of Croatia (Category A, B, C)

Description of categories:

AERC (Association of European Rarities Committees) (www.aerc.eu/guidelines.html):

- A Species that have been recorded in an apparently natural state at least once since 1st January 1950.
- B Species that have been recorded in an apparently natural state but only between 1st January 1800 and 31st December 1949.
- C Species that were originally introduced by man, but have established self-supported breeding populations derived from introduced stock, also birds probably originating from a category C population in other country.
- D Species that would otherwise appear in categories A or B except that there is reasonable doubt that they have ever occurred in a natural state.
- E Species that have been recorded as escapees from captivity.
- C E Species that would otherwise appear in category C except that escapees from captivity could not be ruled out with reasonable certainty.

Regularity:

- R Regular – species recorded in at least 7 years out of the last 10 years
- Ir Irregular – species recorded more than 10 times and in more than 5 years in the last 50 years but in fewer than 7 years out of the last 10 years
- Rare species recorded 1–10 times or in 1–5 years in the last 50 years

Population:

- B Breeding
- W Wintering
- M Migratory
- Re- Extinct in Croatia in associated status
- * Irregular in the associated status

SAŽETAK

U petom izvještaju Komisije za rijetke vrste ptica izvješćuje se o novim prihvaćenim opažanjima rijetkih ptičjih svojti dostavljenih komisiji između 2017. i 2024. godine. Dvanaest vrsta zabilježene su u Hrvatskoj po prvi put, uključujući dvije koje se smatraju odbjeglih i potencijalno odbjeglih iz zatočeništva, te jednu podvrstu i jedan hibrid. Šest vrsta zabilježeno je po prvi put od 1950. godine, što je dovelo do njihove reklasifikacije iz kategorije B u kategoriju A. Popis ptica Hrvatske sada uključuje 405 vrsta u kategorijama A, B i C te 6 podvrsta. Osim toga, pet vrsta je navedeno u kategoriji C E, dvije u kategoriji D i jedanaest u kategoriji E (odbjegli iz zatočeništva), koje nisu uključene u službeni popis ptica Hrvatske. Osmam vrsta uklonjeno je s popisa rijetkih ptica zbog povećanja broja opažanja. Popis rijetkih ptičjih svojti sada uključuje 80 vrsta, od kojih je pet u kategoriji C E, jedna u kategoriji C, dvije u kategoriji D, te pet podvrsta. Tijekom ovog razdoblja prihvaćeno je četiri novih gnjezdarica, uz jednu dodatnu vrstu koja se prvi put gnijezdila nakon što je proglašena izumrlom u Hrvatskoj.
