GUIDELINES FOR AUTHORS

I. General information

Bogoslovska smotra is an academic journal of the Catholic Faculty of Theology, University of Zagreb and it has four annual issues, primarily focused on original scientific papers in the field of theology and related sciences that deal with religious issues in general and, Christian issues in particular. In addition to scientific and professional papers which are categorised, Bogoslovska smotra publishes reports about scientific conferences on theological and religious problems along with communications, reflections, reviews, presentations and bibliographies.

The Editorial Board shall accept manuscripts that have not been previously published either in print or electronically, including online publication. Submitted articles should be edited in line with the Guidelines for references (for more information see: <https://hrcak.srce.hr/en/bogoslovska-smotra>).

Bogoslovska smotra does not publish excerpts from licentiates, master's or doctoral theses nor seminar essays or undergraduate dissertations.

The author of the scientific article is required to hold at least the academic title of licentiate or master of science (e.g. mr.sc). When the article is co-authored by several authors, at least one of them is required to at least the academic title of licentiate or master of science (e.g. mr.sc).

Manuscripts are submitted for publication to the Editorial Board by email to smotra.international@kbf.unizg.hr and are required to contain two separate documents: 1. Authorship Statement; 2. Article with abstract and key words.

Besides manuscripts in the Croatian language, the journal shall consider articles in English, German, Italian, French and Spanish. Authors should ensure that manuscripts are aligned with the relevant language standards.

II. Categorisation of academic papers

- 1) Original scientific paper: a paper that reviewers and the Editorial Board consider to consist of original previously unpublished theoretical or practical results obtained from original research.
- 2) Preliminary communication: a paper containing one or more new scientific data but lacking sufficient details that could be verified as is the case with original scientific papers.
- 3) Review article: an original, concise and critical review of the situation and tendencies in the development of a particular field of research with a critical review and evaluation.
- 4) Professional paper: a paper which informs and introduces a professional issue or outlines some original solutions in a particular field.

The final decision is made by the Editorial Board upon two positive reviews.
