
EDITORIAL

Dear esteemed readers of our journal,

We are pleased to present the twenty-third issue of the Zdravstveni glasnik / Health Bulletin, our electronic journal dedicated to the advancement of knowledge in the field of healthcare. In this edition, we once again bring together a diverse and carefully selected curation of papers that reflect the dedication, expertise, and scientific curiosity of our authors.

Our dedication to upholding the standards we have achieved remains as strong as ever, and we continue to work with enthusiasm and purpose on further improving the quality of our publication with each passing year. We are genuinely proud that Health Bulletin is currently indexed in more than twenty online databases and services, and we view this as both a recognition of our work and an encouragement to continue developing the journal in accordance with international academic, ethical and publishing standards.

This issue features fourteen high-quality papers, including seven original scientific articles, six professional papers and one essay. The contributions have been prepared by academic staff, students, doctoral candidates and researchers from various scientific and healthcare institutions in Bosnia and Herzegovina, Croatia, Norway, Serbia and India. We are particularly pleased that each new issue brings an increasing diversity of authors and perspectives, further strengthening the international character of the journal. This growing international reach is a testament to the rising visibility and relevance of our journal, and it fills us with great optimism for the future.

I sincerely hope that the articles published in this issue will enrich your understanding of selected healthcare topics, contribute to your professional and academic work, and encourage further research and scientific collaboration. It is our wish that Health Bulletin continues to serve as a platform for the exchange of knowledge, ideas, and experiences within the broader healthcare and scientific community.

I'd like to extend my sincere and heartfelt gratitude to every individual who contributed to the preparation and publication of this issue, our authors, reviewers, editors, and collaborators, whose dedication and support make the continued growth of the journal possible.

At the same time, I warmly invite all interested researchers, professionals in field of healthcare, and especially young scientists to submit their manuscripts for upcoming editions of the journal, which are published exclusively in English.
