Authorship and acknowledgment

Authorship credit should be based on: substantial contributions to conception and design, or acquisition of data, or analysis and interpretation of data; drafting the article or revising it critically for important intellectual content; and final approval of the version to be published. Authors should meet all these conditions based on a definition of authorship of the International Committee of Medical Journal Editors (ICMJE). Contributors who do not qualify as authors should be listed in an acknowledgment to describe the given help. The authors' contribution sections are an obligatory part of the manuscript at the very end.

Collecting authorship information

All authors meet the appropriate authorship criteria, and that nobody who qualifies for authorship has been omitted from the list as part of their initial submission package.

Authors retain copyright ownership.
