

ABOUT THE JOURNAL

Focus and Scope

Zbornik Lovranščine is a journal published by the Lovran Chair of Chakavian Parliament, which publishes scientific and professional papers from various fields and disciplines predominantly concerned with Arts and Humanities (Philology, History, History of Art, Ethnology and Anthropology etc.). The published papers focus on Lovran and Lovran region, i.e. the region that gravitates or has been gravitating culturally and historically towards Lovran, as well as on the broader Northern Adriatic area (Istria and Kvarner, especially Liburnia). A special attention is given to the reviews of the recent scholarly and general publishing activities on the aforementioned area.

Open Access Policy

Zbornik Lovranščine is an open access journal. This journal provides immediate open access to its content on the principle that making research freely available to the public supports a greater global exchange of knowledge, according to Creative Commons Licence (CC BY). Its contents are available without charge to individual users and institutions. Journal users may read, download, copy, distribute, print, search, or link to the full text of the papers published in the journal, or use them for any other lawful purpose, without seeking prior permission from the publisher or author(s) as long as the original is being properly cited. This policy is consistent with the BOAI definition of Open Access (<http://www.soros.org/openaccess>).

The papers can be submitted continuously throughout the year and the call for papers is always open. There are no submission, reviewing or publishing fees.

Review Process

All submitted manuscripts undergo an initial evaluation by the Editorial Board. If the Editorial Board deems that the submitted manuscript is suitable for publication, the manuscript is sent for a double-blind peer review. A paper can be turned down by the Editorial Board without being sent to the reviewers if its subject does not fit into the journal's focus and scope, if a paper dealing with the same subject has already been accepted for publication, if it is lacking in content or value, or if it does not comply with journal requirements. A manuscript that does not meet journal's requirements on the formal level (see Guidelines for Authors) will be returned for revision to the author(s) before being sent to the reviewers. Only previously unpublished papers are accepted for publication.

The Editorial Board ensures two external and independent reviewers for the paper in consideration, which are not affiliated with the author's institution. The papers undergo a double-blind peer review, which means that both the reviewer and author identities are concealed from the reviewers, and vice versa, throughout the review process. Based on the reviewers' proposal, the papers are classified by the Editorial Board into the following categories: original scientific article, preliminary communication, review article, professional article. The paper is published with the indication of the given category. In case there is a discrepancy in the categorisation of the paper, the paper will be sent to a third reviewer. The final decision on the categorisation of the paper is made by the Editorial Board and the editor-in-chief.

The author should revise the paper according to the eventual reviewers' end editors' guidelines, suggestions, requests and remarks, as well as mark all revisions; if some revisions have not been made, the author should provide the explanation for it. The revised paper will be returned to the reviewers if deemed necessary. After the completion of the review process the paper is sent for language proofing.

Publishing Ethics and Misuse

Zbornik Lovranščine acts in accordance with accepted practices dealing with ethical issues in science. The journal dedicates a significant amount of attention to the prevention of misuse in academic publishing. Unethical behaviour is unacceptable in any form. By submitting their manuscripts, the authors implicitly confirm the originality of their papers' content and guarantee that the papers have not been previously published (either in part or in full), and that the paper is not currently under consideration for publication elsewhere.

The journal's Editorial Board cannot be held liable for any potential case of plagiarism in the papers it receives. The authors themselves bear full responsibility in cases of plagiarism, regardless if such cases were discovered during the review process or after being published in the journal.

Duties of the Editors, Authors and Reviewers

The duties of the editors, authors and reviewers are almost entirely taken in an unaltered form from the Elsevier's standards of Publishing Ethics for Editors.

Duties of Editors

1. Publication Decisions. The editor-in-chief is responsible for deciding which of the papers submitted to the journal should be published. The editor-in-chief is guided by the policies of the journal's editorial board and constrained by such legal requirements as shall then be in force regarding issues such as libel, copyright infringement and plagiarism. The editor-in-chief may confer with other editors or reviewers (or society officers) in making these decisions.
2. Peer review. The editor-in-chief shall ensure that the peer review process is fair, unbiased, and timely. All papers positively evaluated shall be reviewed by two external and independent reviewers.
3. Fair play. The editor-in-chief should evaluate manuscripts for their intellectual content without regard to race, gender, sexual orientation, religious belief, ethnic origin, citizenship, or political philosophy of the authors.
4. Confidentiality. The editor-in-chief must protect the confidentiality of all material submitted to the journal and all received information relating to it.

Duties of Authors

1. Reporting Standards. Authors of reports of original research should present an accurate account of the work performed as well as an objective discussion of its significance. Underlying data should be represented accurately in the paper. A paper should contain sufficient detail and references to permit others to replicate the work.
2. Originality and Plagiarism. The authors should ensure that they have written entirely original works, and if the authors have used the work and/or words of others, that this has been appropriately cited or quoted and permission has been obtained where necessary.
3. Multiple Publication. The authors should ensure that the submitted paper is not submitted for consideration in another journal. The authors should not publish works dealing with essentially the same research in multiple journals.
4. Acknowledgement of Sources. Proper acknowledgment of the work of others must always be given. Authors should cite all data sources and publications that have influenced the reported work.
5. Authorship. Authorship should be limited to those who have made a significant contribution to the conception, design, execution, or interpretation of the reported study. All those who have made substantial contributions should be listed as co-authors. The corresponding author should ensure that all co-authors have seen and approved the final version of the paper and have agreed to its submission for publication.

6. Declaration of Competing Interests. All authors should disclose in their manuscript any financial, personal or other substantive competing interest regarding their paper that might be construed as an inappropriate influence in the results or interpretation of their manuscript.
7. Notification of Fundamental Errors. If at any point the author discovers a significant error or inaccuracy in their own published work, it is the author's obligation to promptly notify the journal editor-in-chief or publisher and cooperate with the editor-in-chief to retract or correct the paper if deemed necessary by the editor.

Duties of Reviewers

1. Contribution to Editorial Decisions. Peer review assists the editor-in-chief in making editorial decisions and through the editorial communications with the author may also assist the author in improving the paper.
2. Timeliness. Any selected referee who feels unqualified to review the research reported in a manuscript or knows that its prompt review will be impossible should notify the editor and decline to participate in the review process.
3. Confidentiality. Any manuscripts received for review must be treated as confidential documents. Reviewers must not share the review or information about the paper with anyone or contact the authors directly without permission from the editor.
4. Standards of Objectivity. Reviewers should review the submitted manuscript objectively and present clearly their views and arguments.
5. Alertness to Ethical Issues. A reviewer should bring to the attention of the editor any substantial similarity or overlap between the manuscript under consideration and any other published paper of which the reviewer has personal knowledge.
6. Declaration of Competing Interests. If there is any potential conflict of interest related to the paper accepted for review, the reviewer should immediately inform the editor-in-chief.

Copyright and Publishing Rights

Zbornik Lovranščine retains the copyright and publishing rights for all published papers. The author(s) retains the right to republish the paper in another publication of which they are the author, for example, as a chapter in their own book. However, should the author(s) wish to publish their paper in a publication authored or edited by a third party, the author should write that the paper has originally been published in the journal Zbornik Lovranščine (containing full information for this bibliographical unit).
