PUBLICATION ETHICS AND MALPRACTICE STATEMENT

With respect to publication ethics, editors of Croatica follow the guidelines set by the Ministry of Science and Education of the Republic of Croatia as well as COPE's (the Committee on Publication Ethics) Code of Conduct. The protocol may be accessed at the Ministry's website:

<http://public.mzos.hr/Default.aspx?art=7966&sec=2142>.

Research articles considered suitable for publication in Croatica are subject to a blind peer review process conducted by a minimum of two independent scholars. If an agreement is not reached by the initial two reviewers, the submission is sent to a third reviewer in order to reach a final decision about accepting or rejecting the work. The journal strives to make the peer review process as open as possible.

When selecting reviewers, the editors take into account a potential conflict of interest but also expect the reviewers themselves to warn against such situations. According to the Copyright and Related Rights Act (NN 167/03), authors submitting to Croatica affirm that all contents of their work are original, and that all sources of data used in research are acknowledged and cited according to the strictest standards. Authors' submission also implies that the manuscript has not been published previously in any language, either fully or partly, and is not currently submitted for publication elsewhere.

Exceptionally, Croatica may publish articles translated into Croatian from another language. Such articles are not subjected to a peer review process and their original publication site must be listed.
