

Metodički ogledi / Methodical Review Journal

INSTRUCTIONS FOR AUTHORS

General information

Journal Methodical Review (Metodički ogledi) was founded in 1990, and the basic thematic area it covers involves the analysis of all aspects of education and educational work. The goal of the journal is to promote critical thinking about educational topics, with a special accent on the philosophical background of educational theory and practice. The subject of its scientific papers include deliberations on the ethical, political, aesthetic, and epistemological dimensions of educational theory, critical approaches to aspects of formal and informal education, the suggestion of measures by which to advance educational practice on all levels, analysis of the ‘centre’ and the ‘periphery’ of educational systems (marginalised educational groups and educational goals, specific educational groups and outcomes, etc), and the presentation of new methodical suggestions.

Methodical Review publishes scientific papers and reviews in Croatian and English. Only previously unpublished papers are considered for publishing. The journal publishes two issues yearly.

By accepting that their article be published, authors grant the journal the right to first publish their article in all formats and media (print and online publishing) and waive the right to publish the article in any other medium without indicating that the article was first published in Methodical Review, including the date of its publication.

The publisher of Methodical Review is the Croatian Philosophical Society (<http://www.hrfd.hr/>). The journal’s publication is financially supported by the Croatian Ministry of Science, Education, and Sport. Methodical Review does not seek any remuneration from its authors for any part of the publishing process.

Review process

Papers that satisfy the general subject matter orientation of the journal and that have been prepared in accordance with these instructions are subjected to a review process. Methodical Review performs a double-blind review process: the name(s) of the author(s) and reviewers are known only to the editorship. The editorship reserves the right to reject texts before they have been subjected to the review process.

Reviewed articles are categorised in one of the following ways:

Original article: contains as-yet unpublished original research described in an objectively verifiable and complete manner.

Preliminary report: contains the preliminary results of scientific research that is underway. Such articles do not have to allow the verification of stated results. This also encompasses papers in which a new problem is described thoroughly and argumentation is indicated without being fully elaborated upon.

Review paper: must be an original, concise, critical review of an area or its parts in which the author actively participates. The role of the author’s original contribution to this area must be emphasised in relation to already-published papers, overviews of which must be included.

Reviewers suggest a categorisation for the paper, the final decision on which is taken by the editorship. Authors are expected to carefully consider the suggestions of reviewers and the editorship during revision work on their draft papers.

Methodical Review also publishes uncategorised papers (reviews, critiques) which are not subjected to the review procedure. The editorship decides whether or not to publish these articles.

Ethical standards

The editorship of Methodical Review promotes integrity in science and research, and wishes to prevent any form of dishonesty in science such as the fabrication, falsification, or plagiarising of content, repeat publishing, or false attribution of authorship. All papers submitted are checked using the CrossCheck™ system (<http://www.crossref.org/crosscheck/index.html>). A prerequisite to collaboration with the journal is the acceptance of the Committee of Publication Ethics Guidelines (COPE, http://publicationethics.org/files/Code%20of%20Conduct_2.pdf), which are summarised in the Ethical Guidelines document (<http://hrcak.srce.hr/metodicki-ogledi>).

Methodical Review is an open access journal. Papers published in the journal can be used free of charge for personal, educational, or other non-commercial purposes so long as the copyrights of the author and publisher are respected. The use of all published materials must be in accordance with the CC BY-NC 4.0 licence (Creative Commons Attribution Non-Commercial 4.0 International licence; <http://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-nc/4.0/>).

Preparation of manuscripts

We kindly ask authors to prepare their manuscripts according to the propositions listed in this text. Before sending papers to reviewers, the editorship will remove any data that might indicate the identity of the author. Authors are expected to provide manuscripts whose content, language, and style are appropriate to publication in a scientific journal. The editorship reserves the right to make editorial changes to texts that have been accepted for publishing according to the propositions of the journal and the linguistic standards.

By submitting manuscripts, authors affirm that the work presented is their own and that they take scientific and ethical responsibility for it. Authors also affirm that the manuscript submitted have not been simultaneously sent to other journals to be considered for publishing. After receiving papers, the editorship will send authors an Author Statement (<http://hrcak.srce.hr/metodicki-ogledi>). Signing the Author Statement is a prerequisite for papers to be sent for review.

Although not required, authors should suggest potential reviewers when they submit their papers. The suggested reviewers cannot be members of the editorship of Methodical Review or employees of the institution where authors are employed. The editorship makes the final selection of reviewers.

Papers are to be submitted exclusively via e-mail, in .doc, .docx, or .rtf format, and are to be written in Times New Roman (12 point) text with single spacing and justification on both margins. Except in the cases mentioned below, all manner of text formatting must be avoided.

Papers must be sent to: metodicki.ogledi@gmail.com (alternatively to: izagorac@ffzg.hr)

[Basic information] The paper must contain:

- the full name of all authors
- the full name and address of all authors' institution of employment
- the e-mail addresses of all authors
- a title, summary, and key words in English and Croatian (when possible)

[Size] The size of categorised works should not exceed 32 pages (1 page = 1,800 characters including spaces) or 7,500 words, while reviews and critiques should not exceed 8,5 pages (up to 2,000 words). The editorship may ask the authors of more comprehensive texts to abridge their papers.

[Abstract] The abstract must be informative and must describe the main subjects and thesis of the text or basic research data. Abbreviations or quote should not be used in abstracts. The recommended size of abstracts is up to 900 characters (including spaces) or 150 words. Papers must also include between 4 and 8 key words. Names of individuals used as key words must contain their full first and last names. Abstracts and key words in Croatian (when possible) must be placed at the beginning of the text beneath the title and author data, while titles, abstract, and key words in English should come at the end of the text after the Bibliography and before Attachments (if any).

[Sectioning of papers] Papers should be divided into well-rounded sections. The text should also be clearly divided hierarchically (e.g. 1. Research goal and problems; 1.1. Methods; 1.1.1. Stakeholders). Section divisions do not necessarily have to be numbered, however they must be emphasised using bold, bold italic, and italic letters. Section titles must be brief and informative.

[Notes] Notes should be used only for additional explanations and commentary in addition to the main text, not for bibliographic data on cited literature. Sources of financing (if any) must be clearly indicated in the first footnote, marked with an asterisk (*). If the need exists, thanks or any additional information important to the text (e.g. indication that the text is part of a masters or doctorate thesis) can be listed in the same manner. Notes related to textual content are marked using Arabic numerals (^{1, 2, 3, ...}) and are placed in the page footer as footnotes. If a reference appears in the note, an abbreviated bibliographic entry must be used in parentheses (author's last name, year of publishing, page number).

[Images] Texts may also contain images (tables, graphs, etc) that will be printed in black and white. All images and other attachments must be appropriately named (e.g. Table 1. Sample structure; Attachment 1. Satisfaction survey... etc). If they are sourced from secondary literature, the source must be listed. All images and attachments must be mentioned in the text and placed in the appropriate place in the manuscript. Their size and complexity should be adjusted to suit the format of the journal so that all elements are clearly visible.

[Emphasis] The titles of books and documents mentioned in the text should be emphasised in italics, as should all words in foreign languages. If necessary, the author can also emphasise individual words or phrases in italics. Underlining is not allowed.

Citing methods

All sources cited are listed in short form within parentheses in the body of the text (author's last name, year of publishing, page number). The Bibliography at the end of the text lists full bibliographic data on cited literature alphabetically by the last name of the (first) author. In cases of multiple references to works by the same author, works must be listed in the chronological order of their publishing. If multiple references are made to works by the same author published in the same year, the additional marks a, b, c... etc. must be used [e.g. Polić, Milan (1996a); Polić, Milan (1996b), etc].

Examples of citation in text:

As Liessmann (2009, 57) points out, it is indisputed that...

Similar to Liessmann's "ranking madness" (Liessmann, 2009, 71), Illich criticised the myth of measuring values... (Illich, 1970, 19)

The alienated spirit turns into a scarcity of spirit (Liessmann, 2009, 60; Horkheimer and Adorno, 1989, 170–172).

Vuk-Pavlović dealt intensively in educational issues (Vuk-Pavlović, 2007a, 2007b, 2010, 2011)...

The explanation for... (Whitehead, 1912, in: Russell, 1975, 20–22)

Data in parentheses should not be replaced with ibid., ibidem, etc. Citations should be placed in “quotation marks”. Citations that are complete sentences, as well as citations longer than 30 words, should be placed in a separate paragraph followed by data on the source (author’s last name, year of publishing, page number). Citations within citations are marked with ‘single quotation marks’.

The titles of journal articles and works from larger wholes, such as texts from anthologies, are written “in quotation marks”. When first mentioning abbreviations, the full title must also be mentioned (e.g. National Framework Curriculum, NFC).

The following are examples of citations of various kinds of literature in the text body and in the bibliography.
