

Peer Review Policy

Peer review is a critical assessment procedure for maintaining a high standard of intellectual work. The process is designed to provide constructive critical evaluation to submissions to ensure that work achieves needed academic standards. Review reports assist editors in determining the eligibility of a manuscript for publication. All submissions to KoG are first reviewed for completeness by an Editor-in-Chief who will decide whether they are suitable for peer review. Where an one of Editors is on the author list or has any other competing interest regarding a specific manuscript, some other editor or member of the Editorial Board will be assigned to oversee peer review.

Manuscripts that pass the initial screening of the editors are sent out for evaluation by two reviewers experts in the fields of the journal KoG. The journal KoG operates a single-blind peer-review procedure. The reviewers have two months to review, and the authors three weeks to submit the corrected version. In case reviewers have requested minor changes, the editors make the final decision. In case the reviewers requested major changes, the manuscript is sent to the reviewer once again. Authors receive peer review reports with the editorial decision on their manuscript.
