LIBRI ONCOLOGICI is a scientific journal with the double-blind review process which means that both the reviewer and author identities are concealed from the reviewers, and vice versa, throughout the review process.

While conducting the review please pay attention to the following issues:

– Check if the paper meets the submission criteria of the journal (e.g. length, scope, and presentation).

– Answer review questions in the report form to indicate the overall quality of the paper.

– If you disagree with the author’s opinions, you should still allow them to stand, provided they are consistent with the available evidence. If not, then authors, as well editors, will welcome constructive criticism from your review.

– If the paper is not suitable for publication, please elaborate on the points for refusal. Both authors and editors will appreciate the well written negative feedback.

The review form consists of the following questions:

- Is the manuscript technically sound, and do the data support the conclusions?
- Has the statistical analysis been performed appropriately and rigorously?
- Does the manuscript adhere to standards in this field for data availability?
- Is the manuscript presented in an intelligible fashion and written in standard English?

We encourage the reviewers to elaborate on the questions with a comment, where needed, and to include the additional comments, if needed.
